2018 VIEILLES VIGNES SYLVANER, DOMAINE BOHN
ALSACE, FRANCE
~~$13~~$47

Sylvaner [or Silvaner] is a variety of white wine grape grown primarily in Alsace and Germany, where its official name is Gruner Silvaner. It has high acidity but naturally reaches high must weights, so is often blended with other varieties such as Riesling or Elbling, and is sometimes made into a dessert wine.

"Vieilles Vignes" translates to "Old Vine", fitting since this wine comes from vines between 50 and 100 years old, but is marked by freshness and minerality. The aromas of lime blossom, apple, and hazelnut work wonders on sushi, shellfish and goat cheese.

The unique shale and greso-volcanic terroir is meticulously looked after. Yield is kept low and grapes are harvested by hand. Natural diversity and wildlife conservation are fundamental values for the Bohn winery. For many years Bernard and Arthur have chosen, as independent winegrowers to follow organic, ecological methods for their vineyards.

2019 ROMEIKO, MANOUSAKIS
CRETE, GREECE
~~$14~~$50

Romeiko is indigenous to Crete. A black skinned variety cultivated mainly in the area of Chania, producing old fashioned wines until the last years. Now quality conscious producers, such as Manousakis, are presenting a new modern interpretation to this local heritage grape.

Bright, moderate to bright lemon-green color with slow and rich legs. Nose with high intensity. Unripe gooseberry, grassy notes, and some marzipan. Medium bodies and fresh mouth with intense flavor of white stone fruit. Long finish of citrus and grassy notes.

ALCOHOL: 14%

2020 MUSCAT, MARGINS WINE
CONTRA COSTA, CA
~~$17~~$61

Organically grown muscat blanc grapes from northern California for a bone-dry and highly textured and aromatic wine. Half the wine is destemmed and given 4 days skin contact. The rest is whole cluster direct pressed in a separate tank. All spontaneous fermentation, neutral oak and no filtering or fining is done.

Margins is a winemaking endeavor of Megan Bell, a badass young female winemaker living and working in the Santa Cruz Mountains. Prior to settling on the central coast of California, Megan received her BS in Viticulture and Enology from UC Davis in 2012 and apprenticed in wineries and vineyards in Napa, the Livermore Valley, the Willamette Valley, Central Otago (NZ), and the Loire Valley (France).

Only 160 cases produced.
